Dr. Eugene Ahn joined City of Hope Chicago in December 2014. In his role as a medical oncologist, he evaluates and treats patients with a variety of types and stages of cancer, primarily focusing breast cancer.

Dr. Ahn earned his Bachelor of Arts degree in biology at Yale University. He completed his Doctor of Medicine degree at the University of Miami. His postgraduate training included a residency in internal medicine at the University of Utah, fellowships in infectious disease and hematology/oncology at the University of Miami, and a National Institutes of Health-funded research fellowship in microbiology/immunology.

He is currently the Director of Clinical Research at City of Hope Atlanta, Chicago and Phoenix, and has published his clinical research in renowned journals such as Journal of Clinical Oncology, Breast Cancer Research and Treatment, and Genomics. He is also serving a three-year term as Vice President of Communications for the Society of Integrative Oncology and is on the steering committee for the American Society of Clinical Oncology (ASCO) Targeted Agent and Profiling Utilization Registry (TAPUR™) study.
